

Know Your News

Can You Tell Real News From Fake News?

Start by taking the Factitious Quiz. Take 5 minutes to cycle through the first round of articles. We'll have a brief discussion at the end of the quiz.

Click here to begin the quiz.

Can you distinguish between factual and opinion statements in the news?

The Pew Research Center recently asked members of the public if they could recognize news as factual – something that's capable of being proved or disproved by objective evidence – or as an opinion that reflects the beliefs and values of whoever expressed it.

Click here to take the quiz.

Can you tell the difference between factual and opinion news statements?

Denmark's Dollar Forty-One Menu

You're going to evaluate an article, "Denmark's Dollar Forty-One Menu" on the website minimumwage.com. Minimumwage.com is paid for by another person or organization. Figure out who is behind this site. You can open up new tabs—do whatever you normally would to learn about a site. You can stay on the page or go out to another website. You have 5 minutes. After 5 minutes, I'll ask you a few questions about your answer and your evaluation strategy, via PADLET.

Article link: Denmark's Dollar Forty-One Menu

